UPDATE

Foundation Certificate in Food Hygiene

Certificate reissued by the Chartered Institute of Environmental Health

Both the Food Standards Agency and the 'Industry Guides to Good Hygiene Practice' endorse refresher training. As such the CIEH recommend refresher training every three years and has developed this new CIEH Foundation Certificate in Food Hygiene Update refresher qualification to help food handlers update their knowledge and comply with best practice in a cost-effective and efficient manner.

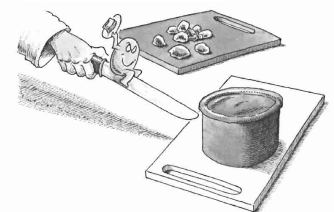

'CIEH Foundation Certificate in Food Hygiene Update' is a short 3-hour programme, which is open to holders of the CIEH Foundation Certificate in Food Hygiene or equivalent qualifications from other awarding bodies. Successful candidates will be re-certified with a full, but current, CIEH Foundation Certificate in Food Hygiene Update.

Course Programme includes:

- Hazards – dealing with the problems that are at the heart of food safety
- Controls – dealing with issues of prevention and control
- Legal compliance – dealing with the principles of food safety legislation and key legal requirements

The course programme focuses on a hazard analysis approach and is in three modules: hazards, controls and the law. It aims to reinforce good hygiene principles and provides students with the opportunity of putting their knowledge into practice through practical exercises.

The qualification is designed to take place in half a day, with each of the three modules lasting approximately 30-45 minutes, followed by a written test of thirty questions.

Course Progression

The next level of training course is the CIEH Intermediate Certificate in Food Hygiene aimed at Managers, Supervisors, Head Chefs, Sous Chefs held over three full days.
