Forecourt Contractor Safety Passport

Delegate Numbers: Max 15 Delegates per course

This Forecourt Contractor Safety Passport was introduced in 2000 by the petroleum retail sector to improve contractors' awareness of Health and Safety rules for working at service stations. Under the scheme, oil companies require contract workers to undergo a two-day training course before they can carry out work on their petrol forecourts.

The 2 day course covers 7 key areas:

- Day 1 Introduces delegate to generic Health and Safety Regulations and asks key questions such as "what is a hazard?" and "what do we mean by risk?".
- Day 2 Is entitled "Working Safely on a Petrol Forecourt", deals with the practical issues of identifying hazards on the forecourt, from the dangers of working at heights or in excavations in a highly volatile environment, to the risks inherent in the delivery of petroleum products and to working in a public place.

During the course, tests are carried out to check that delegates have understood and assimilated the issues raised. The successful delegates then receive a credit card-sized photographic ID "Safety Passport" which will enable them to get authorisation from participating companies to work on their forecourts. The passport is valid for a period of three years from the date of issue (and a one day Refresher course is available prior to passport expiry to renew for a further 3 years).
